

(j) CLAIMS

1. (Currently Amended): I claim a method for forecasting, for a given forecast period, the percent of a given market size, as provided in units of currency, that is to be captured by a forecasting business (the business doing a forecast), in a business (non-consumer) market.
2. (Currently Amended): I claim a method for forecasting, for a given forecast period, the portion, in units of currency, of a given market size, as provided in units of currency, that is to be captured by a forecasting business (the business doing a forecast) in a business (non-consumer) market.
3. (Currently Amended): I claim a method for forecasting, for a forecasting business (the business doing a forecast), a product/service pricing ratio, that would be necessary for a forecasting business (the business doing a forecast) to use against the its leading competitor, in order to attain its forecasted market capture, as defined per claims 1. and 2. above.
4. (Currently Amended): I claim a method for forecasting, for a given forecast period, the percent of a given market, as provided in units of currency, that is to be captured by a forecasting business' (the business doing a forecast's) leading competitor, in a business (non-consumer) market.
5. (Currently Amended): I claim a method for forecasting, for a given forecast period, the percent of a given market size, as provided in units of currency, that is to be captured by all other competitors (competitors exclusive of a forecasting business (the business doing a forecast) and its leading competitor), in a business (non-consumer) market.